

Translation Services

Thirty years of technical expertise offering a broad range of translation services

Chemitox provides a wide range of translation services based on 30 years of our experience with UL and international safety standards applications, the writing of manuals for safety standards, as well as business and technical translations for companies, individuals and various organisations. We are a technical and professional team offering certified tests, measurements and investigation services of electrical products, their materials, and components. We also act as an agent for clients seeking to obtain official safety certification for both domestic and international safety standards.

We are especially proficient at technical translations for safety standards, technical specifications, quality control documents, technical data, manuals, and reports etc. Our engineers have notable expertise in polymeric materials as well as electrical and mechanical products and they can review translated texts before delivery. We also research foreign-language articles to meet your needs.

We are adept at translating business mail and correspondence from overseas, presentations, speeches, seminars, and developing company homepages, etc.

Take advantage of our team of skilled and professional translators and interpreters. Handling urgent jobs with timely turnaround is our speciality.

Native-language checking is available on request.
